

Did School work for you?

Stonebridge Associated Colleges commissioned independent research to see what people think about school, and career advice, with hindsight.

Did you make the most of your time at School?

- When asked if they made the most of their time in school/higher education, only 35% said it met their needs

35%

Any idea of what you wanted to do?

- 53% of the Brits surveyed said they did not have an idea of the career they wanted by the time they had reached higher education

53%

How 'Academic' were you at school?

- 20% of respondents said they didn't enjoy school because they were not academic

Got help choosing the right subjects for you?

- When asked whether they felt they had received enough advice/support when choosing subjects that would influence their career path, 4 in 10 respondents stated that there was no advice on hand/available

40%

Get any practical experience?

- More than a 1/4 of the people surveyed said practical subjects prepared them for their working life

School works for a lot of people, but not everyone. Knowing what you want to do, can happen later. With distance learning, it's never too late to learn.
